About the artist

Ed Hodgkinson's work is derived from one fundamental source; the act of drawing. For Hodgkinson, drawing results in an abstracted translation of what is seen, the drawn line acting as a stream of consciousness or, as Erika Naginski describes it, '...an activity that exemplifies an imagination in flux.'

His practice meanders lyrically between line and form, essential gestures coming to the fore and evoking a sense of free-flowing movement and vitality. Hodgkinson's strikingly graphic, monochromatic prints set pared down but descriptive lines against a backdrop of intense colour. The artist transposes the qualities of chance, spontaneity and abbreviation of the observational line drawing directly into his work. Against the flat colour field, he creates a line that is daring, elliptical, subtly textured and at times surprisingly abstract.

Counterbalancing this immediacy, Hodgkinson's languid subjects are quietly reflective, sensual and poignant, inviting the viewer to reflect upon the fading role of the romantic within post-modern critique. Hodgkinson brings the tradition of observational drawing into the present with lightness and grace. His art conveys a musicality that is controlled but never controlling, but above all, it is felt.

Ed Hodgkinson (1973) lives and works in London. He has exhibited widely in London and internationally, showing in New York, Chicago, LA, Tokyo, Cape Town Stockholm, Hong Kong and Reykjavik. He studied at Camberwell College of Art and is represented by galleries in London and Cape Town.
