About the artist

Steven Marshall's pieces are created by painting on to the front and back surfaces of multiple sheets of glass/perspex, which are layered to create a 2D scene with real, physical depth. The figures in the scene throw their own shadows, which move and shift with the light. The composition of the whole picture, and the relationships between the elements in it, alter with any change in environment and movement of the audience's viewpoint, perfectly capturing the hustle and bustle of metropolitan city life.
